Mayor Boudreau appointed to FEMA National Advisory Council

Mount Vernon, WA – Mayor Jill Boudreau has been appointed by Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) Administrator Deanne Criswell to serve on the National Advisory Council.

“The National Advisory Council (NAC) is charged with making recommendations to improve FEMA’s programs and services. Having a Council that has a diversity of expertise and experiences ensures we’re serving disaster survivors and communities as effectively as possible,” said Administrator Criswell.

The National Advisory Council is comprised of 40 geographically diverse, emergency managers, emergency responders, and subject matter experts from tribal, state, territorial, and local governments, the private sector, and nongovernmental organizations.

“I am honored to serve at the Federal level and bring my experience forward to help guide future recommendations centered around readiness, workforce, and climate resilience,” Mayor Boudreau stated. Her 3-year term began on Dec 1, 2023.
